

Thank you for choosing me as your donor. As the child grows up, I wish the child will live to the fullest potential, looking forward to the excitement of "life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness". My dad used to tell me, "life is a journey, and you must search for your happiness from your heart in the absence of aggression, oppression and regression." I hope the child can do the same, just like me, with an American spirit at heart.

When the child grows up, I am always open to meet him or her in the future.

I was born [REDACTED] in a small city in [REDACTED] Taiwan. My mum came from a traditional [REDACTED] Taiwanese family living there for hundreds of years, whereas my dad grew up in British India, of the English origin. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] I have a brother and a sister. When I was twelve, my family moved to the United States.

I moved around many times until I went to college. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] I studied politics, philosophy, and economics [REDACTED]

I spent most of free time travelling around and visiting historical houses around Great Britain. I enjoy learning many perspectives of my English heritage and its architectural history. My favourite foods are sushi, bean burrito, and pasta of different varieties. However, I maintain a healthy life style by eating lots of vegetables and exercising regularly.

I came from a very well supported family who take care of each other even though we live thousands of miles apart in three different continents. Because of my family, we value diversity and show consistent concerns for global events. Both of my parents were baptized Christian, but they rarely have enough time to practice it. Furthermore, I am outgoing and take every responsibility for my action.

Right now, I am a professional submariner in the United States Navy. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] and working hard to finish up my master program.

The reason I decided to donate is that I would like to help both traditional and non-traditional couples to start up a family. Knowing that raising a child is the most important event in a family life, I would like to contribute that happiness to anyone who otherwise could not have one.
