

Goodwill Message

Hey ya! Probably this is not how the youngs in the future greet each other and I bet you're feeling so cringe by now! I can not imagine how things might have changed in 18 years but I wish you had an amazing life so far and all your birthdays have been extraordinary, especially your 18th!

I am sending you this message almost 19 years ago and it's very strange. Like if I dropped a bottle in the middle of the ocean and expect one day, you will receive my message. I am happy I could help your parents achieve what they wanted the most, you. I know that they love you very much and would give you everything they own if you needed it. Also, I know for sure you're an extraordinary young person, so privileged to have such courageous parents who have gone to such lengths to bless you with the love and support you have been given.

But you might wonder, why I decided to donate my genetic material to strangers. I always had this feeling of helping whenever I can. I am a regular blood and bone marrow donor. I have two cousins who were born by egg and sperm donation. Also, recently I did a genetic test and my DNA does not show any genetic condition, so I want to pass this as my legacy, it seems like such a small thing to do for such a massive reward.

If you can get personality traits from DNA, I wish you have the courage, intelligence and good heart from my side. I wish you all the best in your life, and if you or your parents need anything from me, I will be happy to help in any way I can. That also goes for if any of you ever want to contact me.

Extended Profile

I hope you find this letter well!

If I can take a bit of your time, I will tell you a bit about my life, beliefs and passions.

I had a pretty happy childhood with my siblings and extended family. As a baby, my mom used to say I rarely cried and was super easy to handle, I remember as a toddler that all my aunts and uncles loved to play with me.

As a student, I was always fascinated by knowledge and learning. I used to spend the entire afternoon in the library, reading encyclopedias and classics, history books and mythology. Although, I was not very applied in the class. My teachers would often complain I was not paying enough attention but my grades were always excellent.

I love cartoons since I was a kid. I started drawing at a young age and never stopped. And the hobby helped a lot with my creativity. Hence I started studying Graphic Design.

Nowadays I work with Design and Programming and I couldn't be happier with my choices, since I love both. Apply logic to something creative, I guess I am more of a creative and relaxed person.

My grandparents were a bit religious and they taught me their Christian values of respecting all life, love the others like myself, forgiveness, commitment and don't hold any grudges. Even though I am not a religious person anymore, I still follow the same values because they are universal.

How can I describe myself through my own eyes? I am not short but also not tall. My face is quite harmonic, oval-shaped. Never had problems with my weight (my BMI is 24.5) and I am a very active person and I am more into individual sports. I like to do long runs (10km to 20km, 42km), I also practice Judo and Aikido (black belt), recently I got hooked into bouldering which I am doing at least once a week.

I am family-oriented guy and what I like most is to enjoy time with my loved ones, doesn't matter if is sharing a meal in front of the tv or travelling together.

Have a great day
