I am 5' 9" with brown hair and brown eyes. I was born and raised [REDACTED] to a loving and close-knit family. I was a studious and conscientious student, and my favourite subjects were Science, Geography and History. When I was 11, I started a childhood phase of avoiding meat. 27 years later I am still a vegetarian and animal welfare is important to me. I would describe myself as very task focused and an 'achiever' in outlook. I studied one of my main interests at university-Archaeology- achieving a first-class degree. After university, I decided to pursue my main childhood career ambition and undertook pilot training. I now consider myself very lucky to be an airline pilot- my dream career and also my main passion. Aside from aviation and my interest in history, I am a huge music fan, particularly guitar-based rock. A guitar was a 16th birthday gift, and it has followed me around ever since, always within reach to pick up and play. I really enjoy going to see bands live. I try to keep myself fit in the gym and also play badminton. Football wise, I am a third generation Tottenham fan and try to go and see them play with my Dad when I can. My job gives me the opportunity to look down on the world on a daily basis and constantly gives me ideas of new places to travel to and explore. Although I am not religious, I would describe myself as spiritual and put my faith in the good in humanity. Overall, my friends and family would describe me as kind, considerate, non-judgmental, smart and driven.

I chose to be a donor because I don't believe parenting is for everyone and growing up having my own children was never something I aspired to do. I decided that having fulfilled my main childhood dream with my flying career, I should make other people's dreams of becoming a parent true as I understand how important having children is for some people. If I was going to give you words of advice, I would say that you only live once and it's important to make the most of everyday because time goes by so quickly. Chase your dreams and ambitions until you achieve them and never give up. If you get setbacks and disappointments on your way to achieving your goals, don't be disheartened and keep believing in yourself. Learning from your mistakes is key to being successful. Try to keep yourself fit and healthy and also travel as much as you can as it will open your eyes. Above all, remember to always appreciate your parents and siblings, relatives and friends -even if they may annoy you at times! All the best and have fun.
