Have been described as a free spirit. Someone thoughtful, playful and curious. I value learning. Very happy in my own company. I love people, even if they're awful. I read broadly. Have recently started using Twitter. Very good so far. [REDACTED] Starting a new job soon as a male nanny. Exciting. I'm good with kids. I'm not very consistent and can switch between extremes. Have found out what makes me happy and is easy to maintain. Very positive approach to things probably because constantly imagine how things could have been far worse. This doesn't rid me of aspirations, but I keep a lightness about me. A friend told me I am like a Sisyphus who is aware the rock will tumble back down but is glad to play along and even enjoy taking it seriously. Want to learn to freedive. I like a physical challenge. Quite difficult to write about yourself. My girlfriend helped me out. This is what she wrote. Struggles with choice paralysis sometimes, especially when it comes to selecting films to watch. One of his favorite films is Whiplash. If things don't work for him, he stops doing them, and is known to walk out of cinemas. He likes languages and books and wouldn't travel somewhere for the sake of traveling. Picks up languages far too quickly to not have an espionage background. Confident and a complete lack of self-consciousness/ shame but not arrogant. He can be childish or mature, depending on the context and time of day. He believes in short naps and takes them very seriously. He likes to tell stories, usually with the mantra "short story long" but never boring and interspersed with facts he's picked up through his internet exploring and reading sprees. He's very loud, melodious and caring. He used to play the flute at a conservatory and play guitar in a rock band, but now he uses his voice as a versatile instrument to entertain the people around him. A great albeit sometimes impatient teacher. He doesn't care about famous people, but would like to have coffee with Nicolas Nassim Taleb to talk about embracing and embodying antifragility. He lives by very simple principles that account for uncertainty and encompass all areas of his life. He loves learning and explosive exercise. By the time you're reading this, he'll probably have built an outdoor exercise area to reverse evolution and live out his dreams of becoming a human monkey. Currently expanding his memory skills through meditative practice and above-mentioned story making abilities. My uncle is here and says that I like the road less travelled.

I hope this message finds you well and happy as you celebrate your 16th birthday. As someone who made the decision to donate sperm and provide the opportunity for someone else to become a parent, I am writing this message to you to express my thoughts, hopes, and wishes for you as you continue to grow and become the person you are meant to be.

Firstly, I want you to know that the decision to donate sperm was not one that I took lightly. I wanted to give someone else the chance to experience the joy and wonder of parenthood, and I am grateful that my contribution helped make that possible for your family.

As for my thoughts and hopes for you, I wish you a life full of love, happiness, and fulfillment. You have been brought into this world with a unique set of talents and abilities, and I hope that you will use them to make a positive impact on the world around you. Remember that you are capable of achieving great things if you set your mind to it and believe in yourself.

At 16, you are likely facing many challenges and uncertainties as you navigate the transition to adulthood. If I could offer you any words of wisdom or advice, it would be to stay true to yourself and always follow your heart. Don't be afraid to take risks and pursue your dreams, even if they seem out of reach at times. You never know what you are capable of until you try.

I hope that in reading this message, you have gained a sense of who I am as a person and what inspired me to donate sperm. Though we may not have a direct relationship, I want you to know that I am rooting for you and wishing you all the best as you embark on this exciting journey called life.

Happy 16th birthday. May your future be bright and full of endless possibilities.
