Rate your intelligence from Howard Gardner's Multiple Intelligence Assessment: - mark 1 as most and 9 as least of your intelligence (follow guidance notes below):

Intelligence Category	Score (1-most, 9-least)
Naturalist (Understanding living things and reading nature)	9
Musical (Discerning sounds, their pitch, tone, rhythm, and timbre)	6
Logical-Mathematical (Quantifying things, making hypotheses and proving them)	8
Existential (Tackling the questions, of why we live, and why we die)	7
Interpersonal (Sensing people's feelings and motives)	2
Bodily-Kinaesthetic (Coordinating your mind and your body)	3
Linguistic (Finding the right words to express what you mean)	5
Intra-Personal (Understanding yourself, what you feel and what you want)	4
Spatial (Visualizing the world in 3D)	1

Naturalist Intelligence: Naturalist intelligence designates the human ability to discriminate among living things (plants, animals) as well as sensitivity to other features of the natural world (clouds, rock configurations). This ability was clearly of value in our evolutionary past as hunters, gatherers, and farmers; it continues to be central in such roles as botanist or chef. It is also speculated that much of our consumer society exploits the naturalist intelligences, which can be mobilized in the discrimination among cars, sneakers, kinds of makeup, and the like.

Musical Intelligence: Musical intelligence is the capacity to discern pitch, rhythm, timbre, and tone. This intelligence enables us to recognize, create, reproduce, and reflect on music, as demonstrated by composers, conductors, musicians, vocalist, and sensitive listeners. Interestingly, there is often an affective connection between music and the emotions; and mathematical and musical intelligences may share common thinking processes.

Logical-Mathematical Intelligence: Logical-mathematical intelligence is the ability to calculate, quantify, consider propositions and hypotheses, and carry out complete mathematical operations. It enables us to perceive relationships and connections and to use abstract, symbolic thought; sequential reasoning skills; and inductive and deductive thinking patterns.

Existential Intelligence: Sensitivity and capacity to tackle deep questions about human existence, such as the meaning of life, why we die, and how did we get here.

Interpersonal Intelligence: Interpersonal intelligence is the ability to understand and interact effectively with others. It involves effective verbal and nonverbal communication, the ability to note distinctions among others, sensitivity to the moods and temperaments of others, and the ability to entertain multiple perspectives. Teachers, social workers, actors, and politicians all exhibit interpersonal intelligence. Young adults with this kind of intelligence are leaders among their peers, are good at communicating, and seem to understand others' feelings and motives.

Bodily-Kinaesthetic Intelligence: Bodily kinaesthetic intelligence is the capacity to manipulate objects and use a variety of physical skills. This intelligence also involves a sense of timing and the perfection of skills through mind-body union. Athletes, dancers, surgeons, and crafts people exhibit well-developed bodily kinaesthetic intelligence.

Linguistic Intelligence: Linguistic intelligence is the ability to think in words and to use language to express and appreciate complex meanings. Linguistic intelligence allows us to understand the order and meaning of words and to apply meta-linguistic skills to reflect on our use of language. Linguistic intelligence is the most widely shared human competence and is evident in poets, novelists, journalists, and effective public speakers. Young adults with this kind of intelligence enjoy writing, reading, telling stories or doing crossword puzzles.

Intra-personal Intelligence: Intra-personal intelligence is the capacity to understand oneself and one's thoughts and feelings, and to use such knowledge in planning and derationing one's life. Intra-personal intelligence involves not only an appreciation of the self, but also of the human condition. It is evident in psychologist, spiritual leaders, and philosophers. These young adults may be shy. They are very aware of their own feelings and are self-motivated.

Spatial Intelligence: Spatial intelligence is the ability to think in three dimensions. Core capacities include mental imagery, spatial reasoning, image manipulation, graphic and artistic skills, and an active imagination. Sailors, pilots, sculptors, painters, and architects all exhibit spatial intelligence. Young adults with this kind of intelligence may be fascinated with mazes or jigsaw puzzles, or spend free time drawing or daydreaming.

Pen Sketch (Please write an essay about yourself i.e., describing your childhood, progressing towards your adult life in a few words, including some memorable events if you've had):

I was a very good kid; very obedient, clever and curious, with talent for learning, music, reasoning and computing since an early age. At twelve or so, I also developed considerable social skills, had a lot of friends and girlfriends, and generally enjoyed life very much. After [REDACTED] I started taking life a bit more seriously; I have worked as a theoretical physicist and am quite a good scientist I must admit. Then I moved to Fintech, and now am in finance.

I have lived in many countries, met a lot of people and seen many cultures, and all in all have been quite happy with my life and proud of myself. I am a good person and try to think deeply about things and life. At 10, I decided that god does not exist. At [REDACTED] understood more about the physical world. It has taken me a bit longer to understand love and life. My heart was broken once or twice, but now is OK. I wish the rest of humanity was more like me than it is. I do, however, appreciate and recognize beauty, intelligence, and kindness, when I meet them. Also, I hope to live to see a better future. We are not in a completely wrong track after all.

Goodwill Message for recipients using your donations:Goodwill Message for children born from your donations:

Hi there. I am happy that you have been born, and really hope that you are happy too! Live a worthy and fascinating life, as I am doing, and take care of your genetic heritage. Do not hesitate in contacting me if you want when the time comes. I love you, from the distance, and wish you the best of lucks and wishes.
