Dear parents,

If you're reading this, I guess it means that you are ready to give so much love and care to a child that you desire so much. This is why, [REDACTED], I decided that I should give back to life all the happiness and luck which have been granted to me. As a "receiving" parent(s), you have the burden to give as much love that my own parents offered to me.

Currently I don't have any children, but I am totally open to make this happen one day. I am pleased you are considering that I could be a donor for you.

I wish you good luck in starting a family, which must be a wonderful adventure.

As you are reading this, I hope that your parents have given as much love to you, as mine offered to me. I believe any person in this world must have the opportunity to start a family; this is why I did this donation.

About my life: I have a sister [REDACTED] my parents divorced when I was a teenager and now I have two wonderful step families.

When I was a child, I was pretty good at school and very dynamic and impulsive. [REDACTED], I firstly act and then think (although, I have been trying to improve that...!).

My friends would say I am a funny person, enthusiastic and positive about life. I am also easy going, very sociable and can connect easily with strangers. I consider life is a gift so I do not trivialise happiness and put things in perspective when it goes wrong - this makes me a happy man.

I have always been at ease with maths and analytics. I studied various fields such as economy and engineering and then I chose what I wanted to do as a job. Now I work as an operation manager in a company I founded with friends and I'm thriving in that. I love to deal with many different problems, so I guess I am a jack of all trades.

I am keen on sport like football, golf and tennis. I love cinema and music and I travelled a lot to explore different cultures which I consider essential to develop our minds.

I was baptised, however I don't really believe in god, but I strongly believe in karma so I am always honest. I think what is important in life is not how other people see us, what is important is what you do, who you do it with and why you do it. I always do things which are helpful for people I care about and for myself.

You may be 18 as you're reading this, please be sure that the 10 coming years will be the most wonderful of your life, so get ready for all those adventures, be happy and I wish you all the best.
