Growing up my family was very small, I was an only child and one of my parents was an orphan. As a result, family was always important to me. Now having children of my own, which are the highlight of my life, and knowing others who have struggled or used donors themselves I decided that I also wanted to be a donor.

As a child I was always interested in learning new things, I loved school and always tried to do the best that I could. I excelled in most academic subjects but in particular maths and science. I went to University and studied biological sciences but ended up working in a variety of careers including banking, management consulting and running my own business.

I am not someone who gets stressed easily, I am calm in most situations and am very happy in life. Whilst I was never a sporty child, as an adult I enjoy keeping fit and challenging myself for example running the marathon or participating in other races.

I am a voracious reader and have been since I can remember – to relax I like nothing more than reading a good book, and if I can't find one I will re-read an old one.

Family remains very important to me, and I also spend as much time as I can with my children as I know how quickly they will grow up. Treasuring day-to-day activities like walking them to school every morning.

Hi

Happy Birthday if you have recently turned 18! I hope you have had a good and happy life so far.

You are reading this because you wanted to find out more about me as a donor. I decided to donate after I had children myself, they have been the absolute highlight of my life, and I am thankful for them every day. However, I have known several people who have had trouble having children or have had to use donors for other reasons. As a result, I wanted to provide that same help to others and give them the chance to have a family as well.

As for me personally, I am an older donor [REDACTED] I am tall (198cm), have blond hair and green eyes. I have always liked learning or experiencing new things, I enjoyed maths and science at school and studied biological sciences at university. To relax, I enjoy reading, running, cycling, swimming, spending time with my family and travelling when I can.

The only wish I can leave you with is that I hope you enjoy your life. Nothing in life goes entirely how we plan, however looking back I don't regret a single decision, as without those experiences I would not be who I am today – I truly hope you will be able to say the same at my age.

If you want to meet me, or have any questions you wish to ask, please do reach out. I wish you the very best for the future!
